A professional snowboarder in British Columbia for eight years, Mike put himself through University with his winnings. Mike's interest in painting led him to hook up with old friends, Travis and Bewabon Shilling when he returned to Ontario. Mike has been painting in a dedicated fashion ever since. The three often paint together at the Shilling studio in Rama.

Although he says his painting practice has not changed a lot since he began painting full time "things really opened up for me when I built a studio and had way more time to pace around. I am getting a lot better at wasting paint ...".

Michael Scott's landscapes celebrate the configurations of cloud and landscape in the rolling countryside around Rugby where he lives.

"I just keep painting. I have discovered that you can't plan these things out. The works evolve on their own, totally linked to how you are feeling and responding to your experiences as they come."
